“ I met Harry many years ago when we worked for a gas station in Burbank. I was getting a divorce and scared of the world and had no self-confidence and was a weak mess. He was the loudest, most obnoxious and filter less person I had ever met and to tell you the truth he scared the hell out of me, but then he somehow became my protector and the protector of my kids. There was nothing he would not do for me because he knew I was really hurting. He showed himself to be the best friend I could have ever asked for and remained my best friend for a ton of years. It was an unconditional friendship and love on both sides, we accepted each other for who we were, and we respected and loved each other till the end.

Harry, you touched a lot of people's lives, and I just want you to know that your life was definitely worth it and everyone you have known can attest to that. RIP you earned it.

Love you always - and will carry you in my heart forever.

“ Here's to the greatest man that's ever lived. Grandpa, I wouldn't be here if it wasn't for you. Thank you for everything you've done for our family. This is one of the hardest goodbyes because of how special of a person you were. It's only been a week and still doesn't feel real. I promise to take care of grandma and I hope you're resting in peace. I love you grandpa, always and forever.

“ Anyone who knows my relationship with Harry, knows that he annoyed the heck out of me. but what you may not know is that he knew that too.... he laughed about it and in true Harry style...he set out to annoy me more.... but I loved him, and he knew that too. Thank you, Harry, for being a part of my sister, her children, and her grandchildren's lives...you brought love, joy, kindness, and lots of laughs to all of us...you are leaving a big hole in our lives and in our hearts...you will be so missed?
